Nuclear Test Pact Ready For Initialing

Only Last-Minute Obstacle Could Block Agreement

MOSCOW (AP)—The success of failure of the nuclear test ban talks here narrowed today to a question of what Soviet Premier Khrushchev asks, if anything, as a price for signing.

It was evident both here and in Washington that the agreement was virtually ready to be initialed.

Western sources here indicated that only a last-minute obstacle—such as a Soviet demand for an accompanying nonaggression pact—could block a U.S.-British-Soviet accord to ban nuclear tests in the atmosphere, outer space and under water.

To Initial Agreement

Sources in Washington said the chief American negotiator, Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, was expected to initial the agreement today or Tuesday and return to Washington Wednesday.

Harriman had an excellent opportunity Sunday night to sound out Khrushchev on any last-minute roadblocks.

Together they sat through a U.S.-Soviet track meet narrowly won by the American men and easily won by the Russian women.

After the meet, Khrushchev invited Harriman and U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler into a reception room attached to the premier's Lenin Stadium box.

Meeting Held Secret

The hour-long surprise meeting, like all the rest of the talks, was secret. But it was the best opportunity Harriman had to urge the U.S. contention that such matters as a nonaggression pact between the NATO allies and the Communist nations of Eastern Europe should be deferred.

As the talks moved into their second week hints continued from the Soviet side that a nonaggression pact must accompany the test ban accord. But neither Khrushchev nor Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has said a test ban will be blocked unless accompanied by a nonaggression pact.

The West has long favored a treaty barring all but underground nuclear tests to avoid the impasse over on-site inspection. Both sides agree tests made above ground and under water can be detected without on-site inspection.

The West opposes a formal nonaggression pact, chiefly because it would permanently divide Germany and at least imply Western recognition of Communist East Germany.

Several Items On Council's Agenda

City Council will meet in special session at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to consider four matters:

1. The practicality of proceeding with a proposed extension of W. Second St. (Objection to the proposal was presented by residents last week.)

2. Whether all residents of Jennings Ave. should be assessed at the same footage rate for repair of the street. (Residents of Jennings Ave. north of a point near Eighth St. believe repairs of the street in the area need not be as extensive as the repairs should be south of the point, and that therefore assessment rates should differ.)

3. The cost of repaving Wilson St. (The city engineer is expected to offer information on this.)

4. The advisability of amending an 11-year-old ordinance dealing with federal aid urban system routes. (A question exists as to whether the ordinance will need amending in order that Jennings Ave. might be included for federal funds.)

Conference Buffeted by Politics

Civil Rights Issue Principal Topic on Governors' Agenda

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The 55th annual governors' conference, buffeted by presidential campaign politics, looks the civil rights issue in the face today, with what appears to be a civil war on its hands.

Almost every state executive except those from south of the Mason and Dixon line was in favor of registering himself for racial equality in all things. But there was sharp disagreement between Democrats and Republicans—and between Democrats and Democrats and Republicans and Republicans—about how to go about it.

All of this added up to the kind of confusion usually associated with a national party convention and not with the staid yearly meeting of governors to discuss such issues as how to get more money out of Washington for various programs without giving up additional authority to the federal government.

The point at issue at the opening business session was this:

Would the conference encounter, in an effort of some of its members to get approval of a civil rights program akin to President Kennedy's, the same kind of Dixie filibuster with which it wound up in a shambles last year?

Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, bursting with aspirations for his party's 1964 presidential nomination, was sponsoring such a resolution. He said that conference chairman, Democratic Gov. Albert D. Rosellini of Washington, had the power to cut off any filibuster that might develop against its consideration.

Rosellini said on a television program Sunday night that he didn't have any such authority. Although he said Rockefeller might have been acting from political motives, Rosellini denied that he was acting similarly as Kennedy's chief unofficial representative at the conference.

Rosellini suggested after a caucus of 25 Northern Democratic governors that a move might be made to abolish all conference resolutions. This might be a substitute for a recommendation by the executive committee—which he heads, but on which Republicans outnumber Democrats 5-4—for a change in the rules requiring unanimous votes to adopt any resolution.

This would alter the present rule under which two-thirds of the governors voting could approve a resolution.

Democratic Gov. John Dempsey of Connecticut, smarting under Rockefeller's charges that the Democrats were trying to institute a gag rule, outlined a proposal under which the conference would abolish individual resolutions and consider only committee reports which could be adopted by a two-thirds majority. He said Gov. Grant Sawyer of Nevada had been selected to offer this substitute proposal.

Republican governors had their own substitute, drafted by Gov. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon. Hatfield is regarded as a vice presidential nomination possibility if Rockefeller or some other Easterner heads his party's 1964 ticket. This substitute would permit the conference to take up any proposal which had been approved by its resolutions committee and approve it by a two-thirds majority.

All of this parliamentary maneuvering served only to point up the differences that existed among members of both parties on civil rights—and to emphasize the futility of attempting to put 50 state executives, with almost as many individual viewpoints, on record for any proposal.

The Southerners, led by Gov. Ross R. Barnett of Mississippi, were breathing fire against any conference civil rights action. The hinted at a filibuster and possibly a walkout.

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, who hinted at a filibuster Sunday, got out an early morning statement making it more definite.

"Let me make it clear," he said, "that I firmly contend that so-called civil rights proposals have absolutely no place on the agenda of this fine organization. I am ready and I will fight with every facility at my command to defeat these proposals and to defeat any attempt to place this conference on record in favor of civil rights legislation."

The Republicans couldn't patch up any leak-proof unity on an issue where Rockefeller had grabbed the ball. Govs. Paul Fannin of Arizona and Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma, who are supporting Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for the GOP presidential nomination, registered complaints against what Fannin called the New York governor's "extreme position" on civil rights.

Alliance Fisherman Is Victim

First Drowning In City Lake Recorded

Clyde John Baum, 54, of 123 E. Gaskill St., Alliance, became the first drowning victim in the Salem city reservoir Saturday afternoon when a sudden rainstorm upset the boat from which he and a companion had been fishing.

His friend, Walter Good, 61, of RD 4, Alliance, was rescued by Harry Harker, 18, attendant at the lake who earlier had warned the men of the approaching storm.

The city lake was opened to public fishing last summer, with Pete Harker of 675 E. Sixth St. as manager.

The drowning occurred at the northern end of the lake in about 20 feet of water and about 500 yards from the boathouse. The two men were the only ones on the lake.

Harry Harker, in his father's outboard motorboat, offered to bring the two men in but Baum is reported to have said, "We'll be all right. If it gets too rough, we'll go to shore."

The victim had "weathered out" a similar storm two weeks ago.

A short while later Harker heard both men yelling for help. He sped to the scene, and as he approached, he noticed that the boat was upside down and that fishing gear was in the water.

Cruising slowly around the boat, Harry noticed Good's head in the water. He pulled Good into his boat but he couldn't see the other man.

Young Harker radioed his father and he and city firemen sped to the scene.

Ironically, when Baum's body was recovered in about 15 minutes he was found caught in his own heavy fishing line. Assisting in the recovery of the body was Pete Harker and city firemen George Schmid and Robert Gibson.

Good reported that he heard Baum yell, "Grab hold of the boat!" He said he treaded water until he was rescued by young Harker.

Baum was an experienced fisherman and an expert swimmer. Dr. William Koloz, county coroner, ruled accidental death. He said that the fishing line wrapped around Baum before Baum hit the water.

The coroner theorized that high winds and the choppy condition of the water swirled the boat around in the water, causing Baum to be entangled in his fishing line.

Firemen attempted to revive Baum by artificial respiration in the boat, but they saw immediately it was fruitless.

Fire Trucks Disabled
Salem firemen responded to the call for aid with a fire truck, an emergency jeep, and the fire chief's station wagon that has a resuscitator and other lifesaving equipment.

The fire truck, owned by Perry Township and used mostly in the township, developed two flat tires en route.

They hitched a ride with a motorist and sped to the drowning scene.

The jeep, a World War II vehicle made over into an emergency fire truck, also broke down on the Teegarden Road, about a

Red China, Russia Agree On New Talks

MOSCOW (AP)—Red China and the Soviet Union say they have agreed to meet—"some time later"—and make another try at settling their bitter ideological dispute. Diplomats in Moscow did not expect the meeting would be held soon.

The announcement, made simultaneously Sunday in Peking and Moscow, coincided with a new Chinese attack on the Soviet Communist party. Peking accused it of trying to incite the Chinese people and party against Mao Tse-tung.

The Soviet-Chinese talks broke off Saturday. Premier Khrushchev took his first public notice of the Chinese delegation, giving it a farewell dinner.

The communique issued Sunday said the central committees of both Communist parties would set the place and time of the next meeting.

It reported that during the talks both sides "expounded their own views and stand on a series of important questions of principle concerning contemporary world developments, the international Communist movement and Sino-Soviet relations."

Western quarters interpreted this to mean Chinese spokesmen Teng Hsiao-ping and Soviet theoretician Mikhail Suslov did little more since the meetings began July 5 than lecture each other.

Premier Khrushchev is expected to defend his stand and outline his strategy in the Communist power struggle at a meeting of East European Communist leaders opening in Moscow Wednesday.

Ward Goes On Trial In British Scandal

LONDON (AP)—The crown put Dr. Stephen Ward on trial before a jury of 11 men and a woman today and accused him of keeping pretty girls as sex pets for hire to men.

Christine Keeler, wearing a gold suit, was the first witness for the prosecution. The red-haired party girl's relationships with a British Cabinet minister and a Soviet Embassy aide came near to toppling Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government.

Columbiana County On Governor's List

Aid For Drought Areas Requested

Ohio Gov. James L. Rhodes Sunday sent a wire to U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, requesting that 20 Ohio counties, including Columbiana County, be declared drought areas.

The governor asked that farmers living in the affected areas be authorized to harvest or graze acres diverted under the Agriculture Department's soil bank program.

The 20 counties named were Ashtabula, Athens, Belmont, Columbiana, Gallia, Geauga, Hocking, Holmes, Knox, Lake, Lorain, Meigs, Noble, Perry, Portage, Richland, Stark, Trumbull, Tuscarawas and Wayne.

Rhodes wired that his request was pursuant to the recommendation of the Ohio U.S. Department of Agriculture disaster committee, and the Ohio director of agriculture. He added:

"During the past three months, rainfall in some areas of Ohio has been far below normal, which has seriously reduced the forage available for livestock."

The governor said he expected an answer within a day or two.

Parker Named To District Elks Office

Harold E. Parker of 1601 Southeast Blvd. has been appointed district deputy grand exalted ruler of the Ohio Elks Northeast-South District for 1963-64.

He succeeds John H. Yerian of Youngstown.

The appointment was made by the Elks' new grand exalted ruler, Ronald J. Dunn of Oneida, N. Y., at the organization's grand lodge convention held last week in San Francisco.

Parker, a draftsman at the Electric Furnace Co., has been a member of the Salem Elks Lodge since 1950 and served as exalted ruler in 1957-58. He also is a trustee and ritual chairman of the lodge.

He was granted an honorary life membership in 1961.

The district comprises 13 Elks lodges in Salem, Youngstown, Girard, Warren, Alliance, Canton, Massillon, Ravenna, Akron North Canton, Kent, Cuyahoga Falls and Barberton.

Parker and Joseph Pasco, current exalted ruler of the lodge, attended the San Francisco convention. They were accompanied by their wives.

Three other members of the Salem lodge have served as district deputies. They are Russell E. Myers and the late Atty. L. P. Metzgar and G. Kenneth Mounts.

JFK To Act on Rail Impasse

Drafts Proposals To Avert Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—With hope of a quick rail settlement all but gone, President Kennedy confers today with management and union leaders and then sends recommendations to Congress for legislation to avert a nationwide strike.

Congressional leaders also were called to the White House for a separate meeting with the President as legislation appeared the only way to solve the four-year-old dispute over new work rules.

A flurry of weekend conferences had raised hopes that a settlement might be in the works. The optimism was cut short Sunday night when Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz reported no agreement had been reached.

Kennedy worked on his report to Congress while spending the weekend at Cape Cod. By the time his report reached the capital Sunday night he and his special counsel, Theodore C. Sorensen, had completed a first draft.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the presidential message would be ready before Congress quits for the day.

The carriers intend to start putting the new work rules into effect a week from today. About 60,000 rail jobs would be eliminated gradually. The railroads say they are unnecessary and costly.

The five operating unions have said they will strike when the rules go into effect. They claim the jobs ensure safe and efficient train operations.

Both sides agreed on a reprieve until July 29 after a meeting with Kennedy on July 10, eight hours before a previous strike deadline.

What Kennedy will ask of Congress has been a closely guarded secret. Speculation has centered on some form of compulsory arbitration or an extended mediation period followed by arbitration of knotty issues.

The White House talks conceivably could help shape Kennedy's proposed legislation.

Government negotiators met with union leaders and management Sunday while some of the rail brotherhoods held separate sessions with the carriers.

At the conclusion of the meetings Wirtz said there was no substantial change in the positions of the two sides.

However, the secretary said he will be "watching for any opportunity to move forward by bargaining toward a settlement through the coming week."

"I will at no point give up the possibility of settling in the way it ought to be done—by bargaining," Wirtz said.

Alliance Man, Struck by Car, Among Victims

Patrolmen Probe Rash of Accidents Over Weekend

Three persons, including an Alliance man directing traffic, were killed in district traffic mishaps over the weekend. Several other persons received minor injuries.

The dead are:
Pete Rega, 51, of 98 N. Mahoning Ave., Alliance.
Mrs. Effie Booth, 79, of Akron.
James Seiple, 34, Niles drugist.

Rega was killed Saturday at 9:15 p.m. on Beechwood Ave., Alliance, two tenths of a mile south of Route 62. Sheriff's department said Rega was struck by a car operated by Francis E. Henry, 18, of 84 Overlook Dr., Alliance. Suffering head injuries, Rega was dead on arrival at Alliance City Hospital.

Rega, an auxiliary policeman, was reportedly directing traffic when the wind blew his raincoat over the flashlight he was using to guide cars. Henry was not held.

Pharmacist Killed
Seiple was killed and six persons, including his mother, Mrs. Theresa Seiple, 70, of Greenford were injured in a three-car crash in a heavy rainstorm Saturday at 4:40 p.m. on Route 46, one half mile south of the Mahoning-Trumbull County line.

Seiple, a druggist, was rounding up members of his family for a vacation trip when the accident occurred.

The victim's mother suffered a fractured hip and multiple cuts and bruises. Others hurt were Eugene Carter, 45, of Warren, driver of one of the cars, dislocated left hip and multiple cuts, and James Maple, also of Warren, Carter's passenger, concussion and possible broken left arm and cuts.

John B. Corbin, 32, of Niles, driver of the third car, and his passengers, James R. Frances, 17, of Canfield and Stephen J. Fiet, 18-year-old Bainbridge, Md. sailor, were treated for glass cuts.

Mrs. Seiple, Carter and Maple are in fair condition at South Side Hospital in Youngstown. The others were treated and released. Seiple's two daughters, Karen, 8, and Sharon, 4, riding with their father and grandmother, escaped injury. The grandmother underwent emergency surgery on her injured hip Saturday night.

The Canfield barracks of the State Highway Patrol said Carter's auto was traveling south on Route 46 and crossed left of center, striking the left front of Seiple's vehicle. Carter's car then spun off Seiple's and struck the Corbin car, following Seiple.

Audrey Seiple, the dead man's widow, said he was coming home from Greenford where he had gone to pick up his mother in preparation for a vacation to Niagara Falls.

Seiple's body is at the Williams

Junior Baseball Tag Day Nets $361

A total of $361.19 was collected when the Salem Junior Baseball Leagues held their annual tag days in the downtown business area Friday evening and Saturday.

Hampered by rain both Friday and Saturday, the leagues' total receipts fell far short of the collection last year.

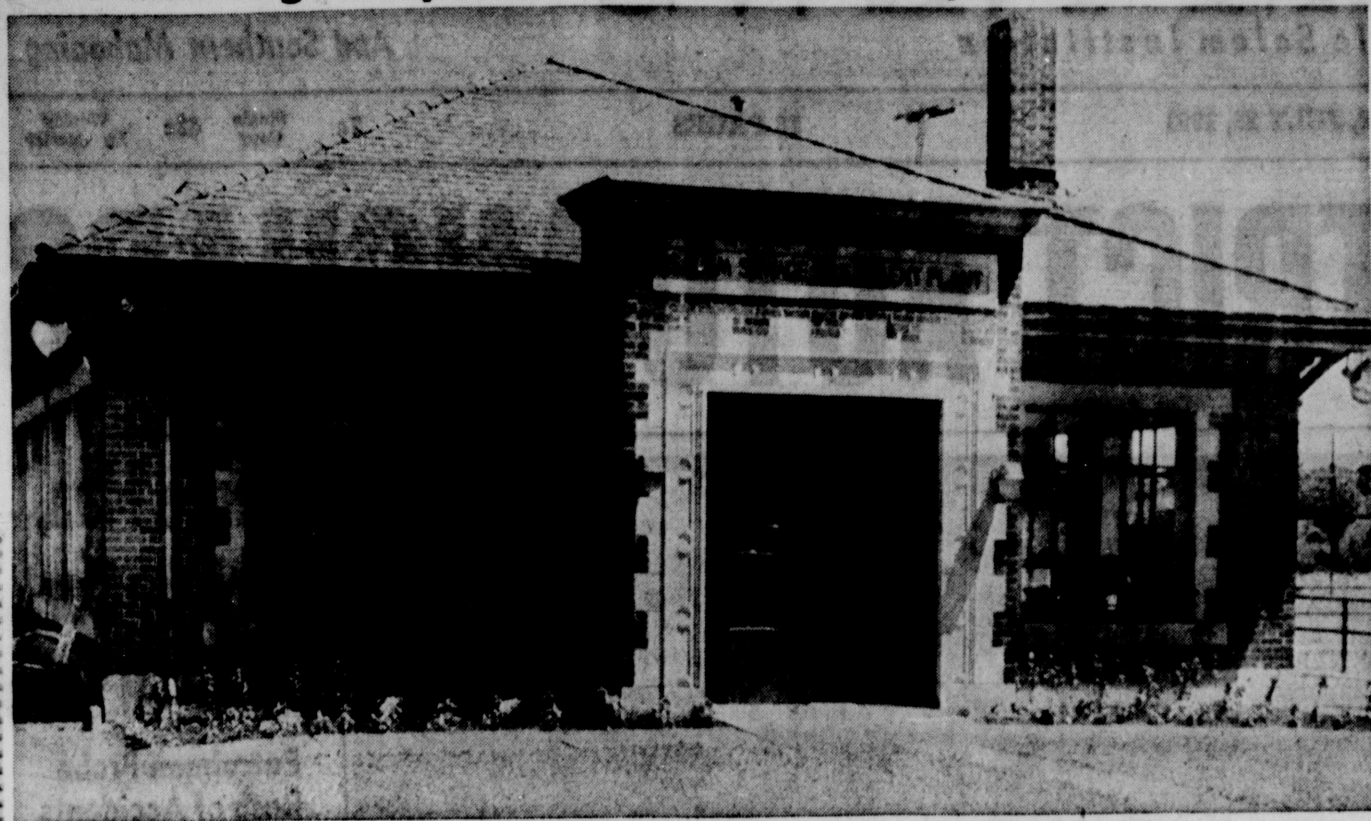

The house to house canvass for funds was not held at this time because of the number of Salem players scheduled to play in the Hot Stove League sectional tourney here last weekend.

League President John Herman has announced the canvass will be conducted next Saturday.

Special prizes were won by Allen Nelson, Bob Hiegel, Harry Ewing Jr., Bob Richards, David Odorizzi, Don Rambacher and Ray Zentko.

Salem Sewage Disposal Plant Is A-1 Compared to Year Ago

Flowers Are Even Growing Alongside Front of Municipal Sewage Plant Off Beechwood Road

Repairs Made; Efficiency Is Watchword At City Plant

It hasn't been quite a year since the News story Aug. 7, 1962, disclosed a deteriorating condition at the municipal sewage plant, where the city of Salem had spent nearly three-quarters of a million dollars in improvements seven years previously.

Today a markedly different story can be told. The sewage plant is no longer in the shocking condition a news reporter and photographer found it to be in last year.

The 100-foot trickling filter, which had been broken down and out of operation for a year and a half, was mended and put back into use weeks after the story was written.

Recently, the capacity of the great filter was increased by the addition of a pump, so that now the entire flow at the sewage plant is accommodated by the trickling filter.

In the article of Aug. 7, deterioration of the roof of one of the two costly 55-foot digesters was reported. The roof has been repaired.

"HOUSEKEEPING" AT THE plant is no longer a shameful thing. The panel room, for example, which was cluttered with empty boxes and other debris last summer, is now tidy, the floor clean and cleared of all but desk and chair.

Paint has been put to use improving appearances and banishing rust. The laboratory where state tests are prepared daily is clean looking.

And while this may not contribute directly to the efficiency of the city's sewage system, it can be noted that the presence of new rows of flowers at the doorways of the buildings attest to the care which the sewage center, once neglected, is getting today.

Utilities Superintendent William Thompson, who took over reins of the city's water and sewage department last November from Aubrey Hayes, who resigned, says conditions at the sewage plant are vastly improved today over what they were some months ago.

"But we have not yet accomplished all we wish to do," he says.

For one thing, Thompson wants to see city water lines extended out to the sewage plant.

WATER AT THE SEWAGE center is supplied by a solitary well, and the pressure is so limited that housecleaning chores are difficult. Right now, plans are underway for the laying of about 1,000 feet of six-inch line to bring city water from the line going to the Nease Chemical Co., to the plant. Thompson believes the sewage plant will have city water before the end of the year.

He says the other digester needs to be overhauled soon. And the aeration tanks are requiring attention. They may even need renewing before long.

City Council's July 2 decision to raise sewage rates from 53 to 70 per cent of the current water rates will increase the sewage department's annual revenue by about $30,000 annually (based on last year's water department income of $179,000.)

At least part of the blame for the former appalling situation at the plant was laid to inadequate income of the sewage department. Thompson and others who undertook to correct the situation believe that the new revenue earmarked for the sewage department will provide for proper maintenance and improvements at Salem's sewage plant.

JIM McLAUGHLIN of Winona points to one of the numerous meters in the sewage plant panel room where activities of the digesters, filters, pumps and air compressors are monitored. Jim is one of a crew of five at the plant.

TO MEET

Two bee authorities from the Apiculture Research Branch of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Madison, Wis., will speak at the summer meeting of the Ohio State Beekeepers Association July 27 and 28 at Nimishillen Grange hall in Louisville, Stark County.

Dr. Floyd E. Moeller will appear twice on the first day's program, once to discuss bee diseases and again to talk about honey removal. Frank E. Todd, chief of the Apiculture Research Branch, will speak the second day on chemicals and pollination.

W. A. Stephen, Ohio State University extension apiarist, says nearly a dozen speakers will appear on the 2-day program, designed to bring beekeepers the latest information in bee culture and honey production and marketing.

John Makel of the Ashland Oil Co., Canton, will address the beekeepers at a banquet July 27.

Test Value of Insecticides

Bugs would take an enormous toll in vegetable crops were it not for insecticides.

A 40 x 60-foot garden plot on the Farm Science Review site in Franklin County will seek to verify this statement come next Sept. 25, 26, and 27. On those dates visitors will have an opportunity to see what happens to vegetable crops when they are not treated with chemicals to control insects.

Twelve different vegetable crops will grow in the garden — sweet corn, squash, cucumbers, tomatoes, peppers, broccoli, cabbage, parsley, onions snap beans lima beans, and carrots.

Dr. R. P. Holdsworth, Ohio State University extension entomologist, says the entire garden will be sprayed with a fungicide to control plant diseases, but only half of each row will be sprayed with an insecticide, so that visitors may see the difference between the sprayed and unsprayed plants. Two insecticides, malathion and sevin, will be used. These are safe chemicals which could be used by any hobby gardener.

"There always is a possibility that some vegetables will not be infested," Dr. Holdsworth says, "but we expect some infestations to occur. We'll simply plant, fertilize, treat with a fungicide, and leave the infestation up to Nature."

The demonstration will be near the center of the Review site, close to the exhibit area.

The Review, first farm show of its kind ever held in Ohio, will tell the story of automation and mechanization in agriculture. Visitors will see scores of farm machines harvesting crops and performing other field jobs. The Ohio State University, the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service, the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Ohio Expositions Commission are the sponsors.

Potato Harvesting Tips

Harvesting potatoes in warm weather requires special care if quality is to be maintained, says E. C. Wittmeyer, Ohio State University extension horticulturist.

Potatoes should be picked up soon after digging, especially on hot days, he says. If potatoes are exposed to the bright sun following digging, scald can occur. This trouble may not show up for several days, and then it is too late.

The potatoes should remain on top of the ground just long enough for the skin to dry. After they are loaded in the field, the wagon should be moved to a shade area or to the packing shed. If there is any likelihood of exposure to sun, they should be protected with a tarpaulin.

Some other practices which will help to reduce grade defects include killing vines ahead of harvest so that tubers are more nearly mature; operating the digger at right speed and depth, de-

12,000 farms in Ohio raise potatoes, either for sale or for home use.

Hog Prices Steady

The Ohio farmer can expect hog prices to remain fairly high through the next two or three months, then slide to a low point in late November or early December.

Dr. Wallace Barr, Ohio State University extension economist, makes this prediction after studying current estimates of consumer income, population trends, employment, and pork supplies through this year.

Prices of slaughter hogs have improved considerably from their low level in April, when 200 to 220-pound barrows and gilts were averaging $13.90 a hundred in Chicago. The monthly average in August should be about $18.50, but brief increases above this level are possible, Dr. Barr says. He estimates September hog prices will average nearly as high as those in August, then drop $2 to $3 a hundred in late fall, reflecting the heavy late spring farrowings.

Increases in farrowings of nearly 1 per cent above comparable periods can be made without affecting prices adversely, Barr estimates, but he believes increases above this level will be followed six or seven months later by significant lower prices.

"It becomes increasingly important for producers," he says,

"not to make sizable increases in pork production. There is a distinct likelihood of relatively low hog prices in the spring of 1964, similar to those of this year. Farmers planning late fall and early winter farrowings should consider seriously the price consequences of the indicated and potential fall farrowings."

Processed Fruits

Look for somewhat higher price tags on processed fruits this fall and winter, says Miss Lois Simonds, extension consumer food marketing specialist of Ohio State University. Prices may be up for two reasons—smaller-than-usual crops due to last winter and spring's bad weather, and higher sugar prices.

Most 1963 fruit crops, particularly tree fruits, are below normal. Crops of sweet cherries, sour cherries, and pears, are at least a third below last year. The present condition of the citrus crop is also under last year. The freestone peach crop will be down only about one per cent, thanks to high production in the southern states. Canners expect to handle about as many cling peaches as last year. Apricots present the only good picture in fruits. The crop is up about 36 per cent.

Richard Nixon Understands

If you were looking for an expert on top-notch campaigning in American politics, one prospect would be Richard M. Nixon.

Even people who never warmed up to him as a Republican leader conceded he knew his business when he was riding the campaign circuit.

He is well-qualified by experience in California to talk about the radicals of the right and their role in politics. No state in the Union contains a stronger admixture of both extremes of radicalism.

The former vice president of the United States and 1962 candidate for governor of California retired to private life last November when California re-elected Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown. He now is free to speak his mind.

Mr. Nixon's most vexing problem in the California race and in the Republican primary was the extreme right — "the nuts or the kooks, as we call them in California," he said in an interview in Germany a few days ago. He said they were "noisy, potent and well-financed ... they can make plenty of trouble for us."

THE REPUBLICAN party's titular leader — no one else can claim the title until a presidential candidate has been nominated in the regular convention manner — was not reminding California for nostalgic kicks.

He was making observations about the extreme right in the forthcoming presidential election. He was removing all doubt that he intends to continue his opposition to "the nuts or the kooks, as we call them in California."

Referring to right-wing extremists who are lining up behind Sen. Barry Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination he said he does not believe they can dominate the Republican convention.

He then put the finger of his political expertise on the critical point of the Goldwater candidacy.

MR. NIXON said he does not think Sen. Goldwater is one of the right-wing extremists being "noisy, potent and well-financed" in his behalf.

"I am sure he must regard them as a liability, just as I do," he declared.

This same political dilemma perplexed and plagued the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio — how to identify himself as a conservative without being identified as a reactionary.

Only Republicans have this problem. Democrats encompass both Sen. Eastland of Mississippi and Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota in the same party, but they demand that Republicans be polarized party-wide conservative or liberal.

In Sen. Goldwater's case, the problem is complicated by quotations being attributed to him, some of them out of context.

It is as though the man were being imprisoned inside his own quotation marks by his political opponents, especially in the East.

THE SAME THING happened to Sen. Taft in his pursuit of a presidential nomination. It did him irreparable injury because it gave rise to the fatalistic appraisal that he couldn't win and therefore shouldn't be nominated.

The tragedy was that some of the extremists of the right who claimed Bob Taft as their own simultaneously told one another the man was "too liberal." No one ever owned Bob Taft.

Sen. Goldwater must free himself from the fatal embrace of extremists.

He has received word from Richard M. Nixon that his problem is understood; that he has a sympathizer who has been through the mill.

Gov. Rockefeller Said It

The full text of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's weekend blast against what he calls "extremist elements" trying to take over the Republican party reveals something not clear in earlier reports.

After describing the extremists and citing two groups by name—the Birchers and the people who ran the Young Republican national convention in San Francisco — Gov. Rockefeller said:

"The transparent purpose behind this plan is to erect political power on the outlawed and immoral base of segregation and to transform the Republican party from a national party of all the people to a sectional party for some of the people."

This is a scathing indictment.

But Gov. Rockefeller then made this statement:

"No such plan ever has, or ever will succeed. It cannot stand the light of day. It will be rejected out of hand by the Republican party. It will be rejected by the Gov. Rockefeller is right. Extremism

Butler Twp. Efficiency

The people in Butler Township who elect the trustees who manage township affairs are probably well-satisfied with how things are going in their district.

Why?

Simply because the Butler Township officials, in addition to being good public servants, see to it that the township residents are kept informed. Clerk Ernest Mosher, for example, makes sure that a report of every meeting reaches the newspaper.

Some township officials seem to feel that their activities do not warrant public scrutiny but, as duly-elected officers of a political subdivision and handling public tax monies, they have an obligation to keep the public properly informed.

Hats off to the Butler Township boys.

The Plunge

By Truman Twill

We have been considering what we would like to do on our vacation this summer — the lady I permit to put things in my suitcase and I.

We are giving up an ocean voyage because both of us think water is to bathe in and to make things grow, not to ride on.

We have thought about going around the world in jet airplanes, but that would be piling it on because we went across the Atlantic and back in jet airplanes last summer — and when you've been in one you've been in 'em all.

We could go to the mountains, but we're getting a little short of breath for that sort of thing.

We could go fishing, but we're really not that crazy about fishing.

There's camping, too, except there comes a time when camping is like making your own soap.

MANY PEOPLE go in for long auto trips. There's much to be said for them. But nothing bores us more than riding in autos and, besides, one of us would have to drive the contraption.

Train-riding is coming back, it says in the travel pieces. The catch is, it isn't coming back in this part of the country — only in parts of the country where it never languished in the first place.

It's always possible to go to one of those resorts where people outdoor each other with reports of their prosperity and bug each other's eyes with the size of their bankrolls, except we lack the basic equipment for one-upmanship.

Many people enjoy going to dude ranches

Red Spies Busy In U.S. Despite Recent Events

All the sweetness and ever-loving coexistence coming out of the Moscow nuclear test ban conference preliminaries is in marked contrast to the growing record of Russian espionage now being disclosed in major western capitals.

There's a belief that the Soviet spy network has been vastly expanded since the end of World War II. This is verified by the number of Russian diplomatic personnel assigned to the United States, nearly doubled in the last 10 years.

In May 1954 there were 212 Russian officials assigned to the United States.

Five years later, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover put the number at 313—an increase of almost 50 per cent.

AS OF MAY 1, 1963, however, there were 415 Russians in the United States, assigned to Washington and the United Nations headquarters in New York. Moreover, there were 317 diplomats from the seven Communist satellites in the U.S.

The 19 Cuban officials assigned to the United Nations in New York brings the total to 751.

They had 1,118 dependents in this country. This aggregate, furthermore, does not include an unknown number of American Communists who may be reporting to Red master spies.

Since it has been estimated that 70 to 80 per cent of the Communist-country officials assigned to this country are in intelligence work, the spy potential is about 500 to 600 operatives.

Three years ago the U.S. State Department estimated that Russian and Chinese block countries had some 300,000 trained spies serving throughout the world. The number is greater now.

Other European capitals rocked with Russian spy disclosures in rapid succession.

THIS YEAR'S SPY MANIA opened with the Soviet's public trial and execution of its own Col. Oleg Penkovsky. He had been charged with betraying Russian secrets to the western powers. The case was used to frighten the Russian people and to tighten the Soviet's own security network.

Hard on the heels of these disclosures last May came the British War Minister John Profumo-Christine Keeler scandals which also involved Russian Navy Capt. Y. M. Ivanov.

Other European capitals rocked with Russian spy disclosures in rapid succession.

In Stockholm Col. Stig Wennerstrom, a disarmament specialist, was exposed as having given Sweden's secrets to the Russian for 15 years.

Bonn put on trial three of its top intelligence agency operatives—Heinz Felle, Hans Clements and Erwin Tiesel—for betraying West German secrets to Russia.

A case with a different ending involves Dr. Giuseppe Martelli, an Italian atomic scientist just cleared by a British jury on charges of passing secrets to the Russians.

Now undergoing his second trial in New York is U.S. Navy Yeoman Nelson C. Drummond, accused of the sale of confidential defense information to the Soviet Union.

THE PRIZE BOO-BOO in the international espionage game is the case of Soviet master spy, Antoloy Dolynitsyn, still not fully disclosed. A year and a half ago he surrendered to American agents in West Berlin, who kept his defection secret.

When he went to London to help the British clean up their shattered intelligence service, his name was foolishly made public. Moscow claims he is still in Russia. But other reports have Russian counterespionage on his trail to kill him if they can catch him.

The one new spy plot is the case of the Russian couple—real names unknown—caught by the FBI in Washington. They had assumed the identities of two innocent and unsuspecting American citizens, the Rev. Robert K. Balth, an Amsterdam, N.Y., priest and a Norwalk, Conn., housewife whose maiden name was Joy Ann Garber.

The phony "Mr. and Mrs. Robert Balth" were caught red-handed passing U.S. military information to Ivan Egorov, a Russian United Nations official in New York, and his wife. All four have now been arraigned for trial.

But this case of stolen identities is one that not even the mystery fiction writers had dreamed up.

AFS Chapter Appreciative

The American Field Service bus stop in Salem was a huge success. The 36 students from 20 countries and the two chaperones expressed their gratitude for the opportunity to enjoy the peace and quiet of Salem and the hospitality of its citizens.

The cost of the Wednesday luncheon, the picnic supper and the local bus transportation was partially defrayed by the following cash contributions: Kiwanis Club, $25; Rotary Club, $25; Italian Club, $15; James Gibbs, $10; Miss Fitch $5. Odessa Paparadis supplied lunch for the students at his Timberlans restaurant at cost and gave them two hours of free bowling. Robert Groner donated his time to transport the children all day on Wednesday. Rev. Winn briefed the youngsters on the history of the Quakers and the souvenir package assembled and presented to each student by R. S. McCulloch made a big hit.

The local AFS chapter is grateful to all who participated in making the bus stop so successful and especially to The Salem News for such complete picture and story coverage of the event.

Teen-Agers 'Big Business'

By ISADOR BARMASH

The teen-ager boom may well have succeeded the baby boom.

This group, often characterized by its big yen for eating, clothes and transistor radios, represents the most explosive layer of the population strata in the next decade and beyond.

A few statistics show the dynamism of this group: I represents 10 per cent of the population and the female portion of it will increase 30 per cent by 1970 and almost 40 per cent by 1980.

Teen-agers, through allowance or earnings, constitute a $10 billion market. The age of 18 has become the peak marriage year and now more than a million teen-agers are married.

What areas of consumer products are bound to be most affected?

Name it and you have it. But perhaps more than any other, apparel and home furnishings stand to have a windfall, in that order. And others, such as automobiles, cosmetics, food, home, electronics books and magazines, will benefit because of teen-ager wants.

TRAVERSING ALL the areas of goods that this segment wants there are several common strands that appear to be woven through the fabric of producing for and selling to the teen-ager.

One is that the teen-ager is a budding adult and wants goods with at least an adult touch.

Also, he wants his own identity so that there is no mistaking the teen-ager's "apartness" from children. Teenagers want attention paid to their own developing likes and dislikes. They want a flair that marks them as just a bit more sophisticated than others in the crowd, but not too much so. They must "belong."

Pricing matters little. But the color, styling and the similarity to adult goods do matter. An important element is some sort of recognition of celebrities or top social events that are important in the peculiarly percolating world of the teen-ager.

Capturing the teen-ager young, even before he or she has become one, can be important.

First, it naturally adds substantial and ever increasing volume.

Second, it fills a large void in a market which needs such a recourse.

Third, and probably most important, is in developing a life-long customer during the formative and most impressionable years.

The two largest firms in the women's apparel industry cater to the young adult group or from ages 15-24. Their success has been dynamic and earnings and sales in the case of both firms appear to be excellent this year. Both managements are acquisi-

THE NEED to cater to the peculiarities of the teen-ager has been exemplified in recent years by the lack of success in the "sub-teen" field.

"Sub-teens" clothes are made by childrens wear producers for ages 11 through 14, as differentiated from "junior" wear, a size and style, rather than clothes designed for specific ages.

The ambivalence of the 11-to-12 year old, the indeterminate preference, has stymied the sub-teen field from making greater progress. The girl does not necessarily stay within the normal 7-to-14 girls department but tends to drift into juniors. In either area, she does not seem to be at home.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old girl with a very guilty conscience. A few weeks ago I returned home from a trip. It was an all-night train ride and I sat up in the vista dome.

A very good-looking guy was sitting up there, too. I noticed him right away but pretended not to. Finally he came over and asked if he could sit next to me. I said, "Okay."

I'm ashamed to tell you that after about an hour of conversation I let him kiss me. Altogether I would say he kissed me about 12 times. He got off the train an hour earlier than I did and promised to write. So far I haven't heard from him.

I'm really a perfect lady and this is the first time I've ever done such a thing. Now I'm ashamed of myself because he probably thinks I'm a cheap pick-up.

My girl friend says I shouldn't feel ashamed because I'm a very affectionate person by nature and this is my way of giving friendship. What are your views? — VISTA DOME TRAVELER.

Dear Vista: Use your dome. Girl, you gave a lot more than friendship, so don't try to kid "Old Granny Annie."

A girl who puts such a cheap price tag on her kisses that she would hand them out to a stranger on a train can hardly be considered a lady.

Dear Ann: For the third summer in a row our boss' wife has gone to visit her mother for a week. And, as he has done two years previously, he has brought his three bratty kids to the office every day because he can't get a sitter.

I'm sure there's not enough money in the world to pay a girl to sit with those savages. They are 11, 9 and 8 years old and totally undisciplined.

The three of them run between the desks, bumping into typewriter carriages, fighting, screaming, upsetting mail baskets and using the telephones. One of them has to be taken down the hall to the bathroom every half hour.

The boss has managed to book himself for business luncheons every day this week and we have been instructed to take them to lunch. It is our unanimous opinion that the boss is nuts, and we would like your advice on what to do about this.—UP TO HERE.

Dear Up: The boss may very well be nuts — but he's still the boss.

The situation sounds hideous and each of you has the right to tell him so. But be prepared to leave because this may be the price you'll have to pay for speaking out.

Confidentially

TO FED UP WITH FOUL MOUTH: Profanity is a crutch for conversational cripples. Tell him to clean up his language or find another girl.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hot Stuff In Arctic

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (AP) — The word cooperative wasn't known in the Canadian Arctic five years ago.

Today it's considered the hottest discovery since someone brought the news that the South-erners would actually pay good money for those carvings the Eskimos did for kicks.

Take Cape Dorset, on the southwest tip of Baffin Island, as an example.

Until 1959, Eskimos in the community were having a tough time. They hunted and fished independently, with mere survival as the ultimate goal. They could not afford to maintain ammunition supplies and their kayaks were rotting.

James Houston, a Northern Affairs Department administrative officer, went into the community and got the Eskimos together in a co-op venture. He found a few good stone carvers who took on the job of teaching others.

This year Oshawetuk, a Cape Dorset Eskimo, came to Fro-bisher Bay to the first conference of Arctic Co-ops, armed with the latest financial statement. It showed the Cape Dorset Co-op sold $123,810 worth of graphic arts and crafts in 1962, that the co-op retail store now has three departments and that more than $47,000 was paid out in local wages. The co-op has 61 members.

It is the most successful of the 16 Eskimo co-ops now operating in the Canadian Arctic. Now one in five of the 11,800 Eskimos belong to a co-op and more are in the process of being established.

They perform functions from log hauling to fish catching and house building and most sell groceries.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Gals: Have you ever taken a look at the shelves under your kitchen sink, cabinet, drainboards and stove?

Wow!
A mess, eh?

Well, let's take a few minutes off today and see what's wrong. I know you have been keeping house for years and it's hard to change, but after my 43rd birthday... I found the answer to those way-down-low shelves.

Rearrange them!
As we get older (and I wonder why I didn't discover this when I had those two young babies, and my back was tired all the time), we see the energy we waste.

When we reach UP for something it takes lots less energy than it does to reach DOWN! Know that? It's true!

So why do we do it? Habit. Habit! That's all.

Take a morning off and take everything out of all those bottom cabinets and put all those pots and pans and conglomeration from under the sink on your kitchen floor.

THEN STAND back and look at all that junk!

You will die laughing... Here's a pan that you never use but just hate to part with because you have had it so long. Why keep it? It just clutters up your cabinet and makes it harder to find the things you do use.

You don't need 15 pans (and this is average!). You don't have 15 burners in your home to cook on! Ever stop to think of that?

Here's the secret.

If you are one who can't bear to throw things away... at least divide it! Put things you haven't used for a year in one pile, and set this aside.

(Later, put them in the attic or garage and if you don't use them in a year... chances are you never will... So you can discard them.) Don't put these things back in your cabinet.

I like to line my shelves underneath the cabinets with foil. It reflects light. When we put a damp pan on foil and it makes a water spot, it can be easily wiped up with a sponge. It's clean and sanitary.

NOW TAKE some antiseptic and make a solution with some water (read the directions carefully on the bottle) and wash the inside of all your cabinets thoroughly. (It's supposed to be a proven fact that a roach or bug will not walk across this.)

If you do have roaches, now is the time to paint some bug juice on the cabinet. It's easy. They are empty and you can do it twice as fast. Besides, no use to do one cabinet at a time.

When a roach sees one cabinet fumigated, she just runs across the way to the next one and has her babies there!

The shelves (especially if they are made of wood) should be first lined with waxed paper. This keeps the foil or shelf paper from sticking to the paint. THEN put your foil over this.

I always place two or three pieces of paper, one on top of the other, when lining shelves. This way, when the top paper gets soiled, all I have to do is push the articles to one side, rolling up the soiled paper a little at a time and replacing the articles onto the clean paper.

CONTINUE ACROSS the shelf, rolling abck the paper a little at a time (and replacing the articles) until the entire soiled top paper has been replaced.

By using this method, you will save yourself many hours next time you have to clean your shelves.

I also found, when lining shelves, (especially those which contain canned goods and pots and pans) that if you will put a newspaper under the foil that it will give a "cushion" effect and the foil lasts longer.

Those of you who can't afford

foil can use newspaper. It's cheap. In fact... free... as you have already paid for it!

Wall paper is quite inexpensive, too. Especially if you buy "broken rolls" at your store. These are discontinued patterns put on sale when there's not enough to "do" a room, etc. Some women have written that they use bath mats, linoleum, or oilcloth.

Now let's start to replace our pans:

First, use the "hidden" space in the back of the cabinets for those odd pans seldom used.

In front of those put all the other pans you use once a week or so.

THEN PICK UP the ones you use most frequently. These will probably be a favorite skillet, a big sauce pan and two small ones.

Put one inside the other... and put THESE at the most convenient place in your cabinet. This will be at the front nearest the door of your stove.

It takes three, and never more than four, pans to cook a meal (remember, you don't have more than four burners and can't possibly use more), so keep this stack light.

Next we will tell you about the cupboard under your sink which holds all those dangerous items... watch for it. Try to adapt yourself to new ideas. If we didn't we would still be boiling our clothes over a wood fire!

HELOISE.

Mrs. James E. Davis

Mikesell-Davis Vows Exchanged Saturday

Seven-branch candelabra lighted the altar which was decorated with vases of gladioli and mums backed with palms for the wedding of Miss Sandra A. Mikesell, daughter to Robert Mikesell of RD 1, New Springfield, and the late Mrs. Mikesell, to James E. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Davis of RD 2, Columbiana, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the sanctuary of the New Springfield Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Paul Beck played traditional nuptial music as Rev. Donald Hebrank officiated at the double ring ceremony.

For her wedding the bride wore a white floor length gown of silk organza with long-sleeved jacket and bell-shaped skirt graced with bow detail at the waist. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a lace cloche trimmed with pearls and sequins, and she carried white orchids and feathered carnations. Her father gave her in marriage.

Ann Davis, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sandra Ritchey of Columbiana and Alice Beight of New Middletown. All wore street length dresses of pink silk organza over taffeta and circlet-headpieces of white organza with flutter-veils. Their flowers were pink rose buds and white carnations in cascade arrangement.

Robert Davis served his brother as best man. Another brother, Richard, of Fort Wayne, Ind., with Donald Ray of Columbiana, ushered.

Mrs. Davis wore a pale blue embroidered sheath dress with white accessories.

Two hundred guests attending the reception in the church Fellowship Hall were registered by Mrs. Robert Davis of New Waterford.

The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth with pink edged satin overskirt and centered with a five-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bridal figurines. Mrs. Richard Davis, Mrs. Donald Ray and Mrs. Harold Mikesell served.

The couple left for a honeymoon to Florida for which the bride wore a two-piece pink and white ensemble and the corsage from her bouquet. Upon their return they will reside on S. Main St., Columbiana.

The bride is a graduate of Springfield Local High School. Mr. Davis is employed as shovel operator of the Coalbrook Mining Inc., and is a graduate of Fairfield-Waterford High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Davis were hosts at the rehearsal dinner Friday evening.

District IBOP Delegates Return From Convention

The vanguard of the East Liverpool area delegates returned over the weekend from the 69th annual convention of the International Brotherhood of Operative Pottery, which wound up Friday at Las Vegas, Nev., after picking Long Beach, Calif., as the site of the 1964 meeting.

The California coastal city was chosen over Atlantic City, N. J., in a vote that was one of the last official acts of the convention.

The vote came after the delegates had rejected a proposal to hold conventions biennially, instead of annually, as at present.

Several local unions had introduced resolutions favoring a biennial convention, citing the drain on the treasuries of both the international and its subordinate units for the delegates' expenses.

The move to hold conventions in alternate years also was supported by E. L. Wheatley of East Liverpool, international president.

The convention was launched Monday at the Sahara Hotel. It attracted 200 delegates from all parts of the U. S. and several sections of Canada. The convention acted on 56 resolutions that appeared in the printed program, along with others presented from the floor.

Delegates who flew home from Las Vegas arrived Saturday and Sunday. The majority of the delegates from this area, however, are returning by train and auto.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Stamp were in Cincinnati over the weekend to attend the annual convention of the National Auctioneers Association.

When Abraham Lincoln's father sold his 36-acre Kentucky farm in 1816 he received $20 cash and 400 gallons of bourbon worth about $600.

For her wedding the bride chose a waltz length gown of white silk organza over taffeta with full skirt and V-neck jacket of Alencon lace with long sleeves. A small pearl crown held her shoulder length circlet veil of illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of white baby orchids with ivy streamers.

Attendants were Miss Janet Leishman, college roommate of the bride, who served as maid of honor and Susan Whitacre, niece of the bride, as flower girl.

Miss Leishman wore a white street length gown with green embroidered jacket of silk organza complemented with a green pillbox hat and cascade arrangement of yellow daisies and ivy.

Susan's dress of white organza with green sash was set off by a matching head-band of flowers. She carried a basket of flower petals.

Mr. Nolt chose John Sheets of Claymont, Del., to be his best man and ushering were Gerard Henderson of Cleveland and Gale Whitacre of Columbus, brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Whitacre wore a yellow voile frock and the mother of the bridegroom a pale blue ribbon dress. Both had corsages of white orchids.

Among the 300 guests who attended the reception in the church social rooms were those from Delaware, Pennsylvania, New York, California and Florida. Mrs. John Dudley was in charge of the guest book.

Fall Fashions

Many New Fabrics Are Utilized In Latest Styles

There seems to be no end to fabric developments, says Mrs. Orena Haynes, extension clothing specialist at Ohio State University. But the "newness" of many fabrics is in the construction — not the fiber content.

With leather in the fashion limelight, a 100 per cent acetate fabric that resembles shiny black patent leather has been developed. It will appear in sportswear and separates. Some types of this fabric are water-repellent and will be used in rainwear.

Laminates remain popular and even the foam-and-fabric combinations sport a new look. But it's the wrong side that has been given the attention — the foam has been decorated. In fact, says Mrs. Haynes, it is so good looking that it might be used for the right side of a garment or for trimming.

A new laminate is one of wool fabric bonded to a tricot knit lining. This "double-faced" fabric may lessen the need for separate skirt linings. One manufacturer calls this method of fabric bonding "coining," because the fabric has two sides as a coin has two faces. This bonding technique should help the fabric hold its shape, resist wrinkles, and retain pleats.

Knits will be of major importance this fall. A novelty fabric-ribbon knit-will be featured, particularly for the junior market. This fabric is made of acetate taffeta ribbons, 3-16 inches wide, combined with wool yarn. Fake furs or pile fabrics designed to resemble fur will rise in popularity. Look for "leopard" to be a favorite.

As you shop for fall clothes, look at the new fabrics, Mrs. Haynes suggests. They offer the same freshness that fashion lines do. Styles and fabrics are closely related. Homemakers who sew especially need to remember this when selecting patterns for today's fabrics.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT
Babies' Actions Often Upset Mothers

What is that pounding noise in the nursery? Most likely it is your infant going through a period of banging his head against the mattress or the headboard of his crib.

Apparently this bothers the mother more than it bothers the baby, because no report of concussion or brain damage from this source has been recorded.

There are different theories as to why infants behave this way.

They usually start their head-banging in the second half of their first year and may be responsible to a need to express a feeling of rhythm. When they get older they will do this by clapping their hands or tapping their feet on the floor. Nothing to be alarmed about.

Another possibility is that they are tense or feel frustrated and are trying to unwind. One fact that would seem to support this theory is that head-banging is most often seen in a first infant who has just been presented with a brother or sister, and suddenly gets less of his mother's attention.

If this is true, head-banging would belong in the same category as thumb-sucking. A good treatment would be to give an extra helping of tender loving care several times a day until the habit is stopped.

It has also been suggested (not seriously) that these children bang their heads because it feels so good when they stop. In any case this is another of those habits for which the child should not be scolded or punished.

Do all you can to give your child a feeling of being loved and try to ignore the habit. The child will almost surely stop of his own accord before he is 4 and any effort to restrain him will only make him more tense.

The only precaution necessary is to make sure that there are no sharp corners in his crib against which he might injure his head. Of course, this should be done even if your baby is not a head-banger.

A closely related habit that is preferred by some infants is head-rolling. This habit is much less of a worry to most mothers. The child may roll his head rhythmically from side to side in his crib for hours and thus wear all the hair off the back of his head. This bald spot is only temporary and as soon as the child stops his head-rolling the hair comes in normally.

My 4-year-old son had a concussion three weeks ago. Now he complains of his head aching. How long will this continue?

A—Headaches following such an injury are relatively common in adults but rare in children. Your doctor should make sure that there is no pressure on the brain from a small clot or broken blood vessel.

If there is no serious disease present there must be a psychologic element in the headache. If you are inclined to be oversolicitous you may have asked him several times in the first few days after the accident whether his head hurt.

Suggestion of this kind can be a powerful factor in producing the type of headache described. Even a 4-year-old is not above making a play for your sympathy and attention in this way.

On the other hand if you have been giving him flavored child-sized aspirin tablets he may be complaining of headache just to get some more of that candy.

If this is the case you should stop giving him aspirin at once or switch to a quarter of an adult tablet. In any case you should reassure him that the headache will go away and then divert his mind to something of greater interest.

THEY COME TO LEARN — The number of foreign students in the United States hit an all-time high this academic year—64,000 students, an increase of 11 per cent over last year and almost double the number 10 years ago. They came from 152 countries and were enrolled at 1,805 of the nation's 2,000 colleges and universities. Africa, with the smallest number of students, showed the greatest percentage increase. Canada sent more students here than any one country, followed by India and Nationalist China. In addition to the students, there were 6,000 teachers, researchers and other scholars from foreign countries and more than 7,000 interns and residents in U.S. hospitals. Meanwhile, the number of American students and teachers abroad fell 15 per cent, to a total of 19,000.

Lifesaving Class At Columbiana Is Held

COLUMBIANA — Senior lifesaving classes, sponsored by the Red Cross, are being held at the Firestone Park Pool each week day from 8 to 10 a.m., until July 31, according to Nancy Perrine, water safety instructor, who will teach the class.

The classes are available to youth at least 16 years old or entering the 11th grade.

Junior lifesaving classes are scheduled to begin Aug. 5 and will also be held from 8 to 10 a.m. each week day. Students must be between the ages of 11 and 15 or entering the seventh grade of school. Janice Toot and Sally Way will instruct the junior lifesaving courses.

COLUMBIANA BOAT AND SKI Club will meet the first Tuesday of each month in the future. Next meeting is scheduled to be held Tuesday, Aug. 6, at Theron's clubroom.

Included on the committee are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Caldwell and Mr. and Mrs. Detmar Weikert.

The Salem Women's Bowling Association will hold its annual picnic at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 7, at Arrowhead Lake.

Tuesday Night Bowling League members are asked to call Mrs. Glen Shasteen for tickets.

Methodist Church Officers Named

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP) — Instead of one superintendent for its 87 congregations, the Pittsburgh Conference of the Free Methodist Church now will have three.

The organizational change was made at the 81st annual meeting which concluded here Sunday, during which the 275 delegates adopted a resolution urging a constitutional amendment to permit Bible reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public schools.

The Rev. R. L. Page of East Liverpool, who had been the conference's only superintendent, was assigned the superintendency of the Pittsburgh-Butler District.

Made new superintendents and with equal rank were the Rev. J. S. Mitchell of Wellsburg, W. Va., an evangelist, and the Rev. E. W. Cowser, former pastor at Fairmont, W. Va. They will serve, respectively, the Rochester, Pa.-Huntington, W. Va. District and the Uniontown, Pa.-Fairmont District.

The conference covers Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia. Pastoral changes were announced Sunday, but there were none in the Ohio churches.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Expectant parents might be interested to know that 415 sets of triples are born in his country each year.

Swimming is the best exercise in summer. It doesn't overheat the body, as golf and tennis sometimes do — and the cool water is refreshing.

Gambling experts say it's much easier to cheat at poker than most card games — but that's no recipe for longevity.

An experiment in a California prison camp produced evidence that sleep therapy can help alcoholics. The unconscious prisoners were subjected to recorded anti liquor talks by microphones placed under their pillows at night.

How much should you pay for a house? If it cost more than 2½ times your gross annual income, you'll probably run into budgetary trouble.

Don't worry if you bump head-on with a bee. It's only when it backs into you that it stings.

Home can be a mighty dangerous place. Some 18,500 people are killed annually by falls — and about two-thirds of them happen in or around the home.

Our quotable notables: "In America there are two classes of travel — first class, and with children."—Robert Benchley.

Royal performer: Nero, the playboy Roman emperor, was also one of the earliest known players of the bagpipe, now Scotland's favorite folk instrument.

Geographic tidbits: There's a pound of salt in every five pounds of water in Utah's great Salt Lake. Our 49th state, Alaska, has over 15,000 miles of coastline. On the Atlantic side of the Panama Canal, the tide rises and falls about two feet; on the Pacific side, about 20 feet.

Worth remembering: "Here's to woman: Would that we could fall into her arms without falling into her hands."—Ambrose Bierce.

It was Philip Wylie who observed, "We're about to enter the age of flight before we've even developed a chair that a man can sit on comfortably."

Weather Outlook

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Official Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather outlook:

Skies were mostly fair over Ohio this morning. Temperatures were near normal.

There were, however, a few isolated thundershowers in the Central Ohio Counties.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 58 at Youngstown to 65 at Columbus. Cleveland had 64.

By this afternoon, temperatures should reach the 80s under partly cloudy skies, and a few scattered thundershowers were forecast to produce light, local showers.

Tonight will be mostly fair but with a continuing chance of isolated showers. Low temperatures tonight will be mostly in the 60s, and fair weather is expected Tuesday with afternoon temperatures in the 80s.

Ladies, It's Time To Revolt; Let the Men Do the Job

It's time to put the men back at the plow, and turn in your work permits, ladies.

A frustrating aspect of a home is that there are chores. But fewer and fewer men are doing them, as more and more women take on man-sized jobs—painting, plastering, building, plowing.

Modern machinery that makes these tasks easier has put women in overalls and on tractors as they thrived on compliments.

But flattery has gotten her no place as she labors in the sun or a damp cellar, while the man of the house is fishing, golfing or lounging in the hammock.

HOW TO GET THE man back to the workbench?

You can take either a positive or negative approach. Confront him with situations that can be solved only by his manly skill or affront his intelligence so that it hurts.

Wash those logarithms right out of your head, and forget you ever knew how to compute the lumber needed for that screened-in porch. Take your bows on the strawberry mousse.

Try to maintain his growing suspicions that you are not as bright as he thought you were. Dangerous, maybe. Could be the house will blow up, if he allows you to continue to repair the water pump.

WHEN THE TIME comes to remove the wallpaper at the stairwell, balance the ladder precariously, and leave it there teetering, until he returns from work. Look hurt when he asks if you've lost your mind.

And when you're out on the mower-tractor-plow that he generously bought you for your birthday, mow down a patch of the asparagus bed or the bee balm he's saving for his favorite birds. It should make a quick incision, worth the pocketbook loss.

When he's invited the boss for dinner, neglect the front lawn. He may mow it in self-defense, especially when you tell him that it's the lawn or the dinner as far as you are concerned.

A PILE OF LEAVES left in the yard can cut him to the quick, but he'll mow them before his guest arrives.

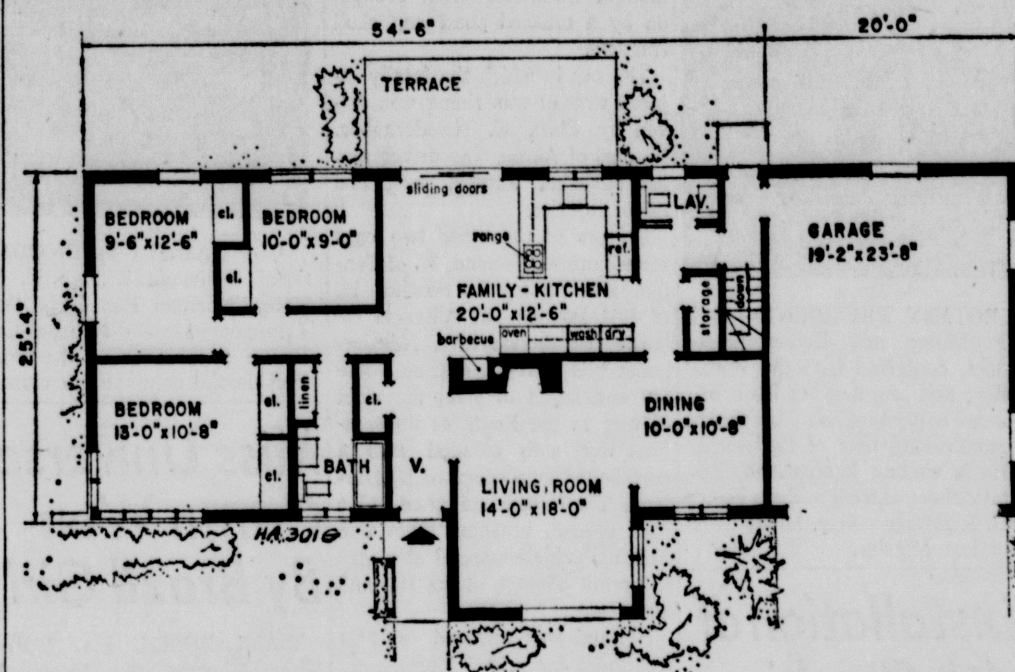

You can win a lot of points by becoming a sloppy painter, splashing it on fishing rods, golf clubs, tennis rackets, until he finally says, "look, I'll do all the painting around here."

Wait until he's rented the floor scraper for the weekend to tell him that your bursitis is kicking up. He'll either take over or see the money go down the drain.

Dizzy spells come in handy when it's time to wash the windows.

WHEN THE FAUCET LEAKS, take it apart and then tell him you don't know how to put it back. Give him the king-size superlatives when he does a job, and reward him with an unforgettable meal, adding "that it's so nice to have time to whip up something good."

Any subterfuge you may use in accomplishing Project: Man-at-work is permitted. Doctors advise that men need more exercise, and it should be the duty of every good housewife to provide it. Even if she must create the situations that will encourage him to leave his favorite chair.

RANCH HOUSE is built of brick veneer on wood construction, with asphalt shingle roof. If one wanted to omit full basement, the rear hallway, storage and basement stairway area could be made into a utility room. Square footage of the home is 1,496 square feet plus 506 square feet in the garage. Architect of Plan HA301G is Elmer Gylleck, 358 E. Chicago St., Elgin, Ill.

Building a Patio Is Easy With Used Brick on Sand

The trend to "outdoor living" has made the patio a "must" for millions of home-owners.

If you have decided to have a patio, you should consider such vital factors as cost of materials, ease of installation (especially if you are doing it yourself and how it will look when completed).

The best location for a patio is near your exit from the basement so that you will be able to carry lawn chairs, tables and other equipment into your storage area with a minimum of difficulty. If the steps from the basement to grade are covered with a Bilco all-steel hatchway, the patio will be safer for little children to play on.

"Used" Brick Serviceable
For combined low cost and attractiveness, consider "used" brick. These are bricks, often in different colors, which have been salvaged from old buildings. They often are used in the patios in the most glamorous homes, yet they cost no more than a few cents a piece. On a cost per square foot basis, a used brick patio should cost only half that of a concrete or flagstone terrace.

Any handyman can do the job himself. Here's how:
First set out 1 x 4 lumber (4-inch side upright) all around the border of your future patio, making certain that these are level on opposite sides. The patio should slope away from your house slightly, of course, to carry off rain water.

Levelling Sand
When your 1 x 4s are firmly in place, measure off the shortest side and cut a 2 x 4 to fit loosely inside the patio from one 1 x 4 to the other. On top of the four-inch side of the 2 x 4, nail two strips of boards so that they extend evenly over the end of the 2 x 4 and the tops of the 1 x 4s which form your border.

Now lay a few inches of sand all along the inside end of the patio and move the 2 x 4 over the sand to level it out evenly.

When you have this 2 x 4 resting on the border as you move it, you will be able to level out all the sand in the patio area to the exact depth you want. When you place the bricks on it with the wide sides facing you, they will reach the same level as the border boards. The entire surface of the patio will also be flat.

Any Pattern Can Be Used
When the sand is leveled, simply put the used bricks in place in any pattern you desire. After you have laid a few rows of bricks, add more sand and repeat the process until you reach the end of the patio. If you must stop before the task is completed, sprinkle sand generously over the bricks you have laid and then sweep it lightly into the cracks between the bricks.

For best results, sweep sand into the cracks for several days until there is absolutely no movement of bricks when you walk over them. Now you have a terrace that will be attractive, permanent, reasonably priced, and — with your basement exit nearby — convenient to use.

Building Permits

Issued by the city engineer's office at City Hall in recent days were building permits for:

Roofing and an enclosed patio at the Russell Moore residence, 2245 Edgewood Drive, $1,000.

A baptistry, Salem Baptist Temple, 608 E. Second St., $250.

Roof repair, Rhea Weirick of 1058 Maple St., $225.

Roof repair, John Mulford of 292 S. Lincoln Ave., $400.

Porch repair, J. C. Guiler of 512 N. Lincoln Ave., $400.

Home Changes After Building Starts Can Be Expensive

If you intend to build a home this year, the Institute of Home Designers urges that you complete all your major plans before you obtain your building permit.

"To make changes in building plans—even major ones—is relatively easy and economical before construction starts," it says, "but the same changes may be prohibitively expensive after actual work has begun."

"For example, surveys show that most home-owners plan to create recreation rooms and work areas in their basements either while the rest of the house is being finished or as a do-it-yourself project after they move in. "In order to make the most effective use of basement space, they should provide for the 'basics' which can easily be added before and during construction but are more difficult and expensive after the house has been built. These include:

"Enough windows to make the basement light and airy—a place where the children can play without artificial lights in the daytime.

"A separate exit to the outdoors. With this access, youngsters can enter and leave the play areas without tracking mud through the house, the handyman can bring in large pieces of equipment into his workshop, Mother has a direct line from the laundry area to the drying-yard, and the basement becomes doubly useful as a storage area for all kinds of equipment. It is easy to change blueprints to include an outside exit with a Bilco door covering the steps from the basement to the grade.

"Provision for heating, if necessary, and adequate wiring. Utility lines can be arranged so that they can easily be broken into later, if necessary."

POLICE PROBE MISHAP

A car driven by Marilyn E. Smith, 31, of 529 S. Madison Ave., which was stopped on E. State St. at its intersection with Washington Ave., was struck in the rear by another auto driven by Carolyn L. Potter, 16, of 343 Highland Ave. at noon Sunday, according to city police.

Material for the northern end of a 32-mile stretch from near Carrollton to south of Columbiana is being stockpiled on the M. S. John Liggett farm on Route 30, about 1.5 miles west of Lisbon. The other supply field is located near Carrollton.

Installation of 4th Gas Line Set In Area

The Tennessee Gas Transmission Company, which has three lines running through Columbiana County, will lay another line this summer, according to company officials.

Hundreds of sections of 36-inch pipe 40 feet long are piled in the Liggett field along with many big drums of "enamel," a pitch-like material used to coat wrapping on the pipe before it is laid.

The 36-inch line is the largest used by the transmission company and is being installed in this area for the first time. Other lines in service across the county are 26-inch, officials said.

Pipe hauled in last week came from barges on the Ohio River at the Ohio River terminal in Wellsville. Barge shipment was ordered when a rail strike was threatened. Approximately 100 carloads of pipe are scheduled for shipment to Lisbon via the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad, provided there is no strike.

Personnel in the Tennessee Gas Company office in Carrollton said pipe-laying should begin in that area next week, with Majestic Contractors, Inc., Canada, handling the contract.

Funeral Home in Canfield.

Mrs. Booth died in Alliance City Hospital after a traffic accident at 1:05 p.m. at the intersection of Route 619 and 44, about eight miles west of Alliance. The Stark County coroner ruled she died of traumatic shock brought on by a crushed chest and skull fracture.

The car in which the fatally injured woman was riding was driven by Clara K. Neiderhuber, 68, also of Akron. The driver and her husband, Joseph, sustained minor injuries.

Drivers of the other two cars were Zane W. Harland, 37, of Canton, and Tommy L. Pontius, 18, of 8862 Pontius St., Alliance.

The patrol said Mrs. Neiderhuber was traveling east on Route 619 and failed to yield the right of way at the Route 44 intersection. Her auto collided with a northbound auto operated by Harland. The impact slammed the cars around, crashing them into Pontius' vehicle stopped at a sign to permit passage of the Harland auto.

Harland was released after treatment for minor injuries.

Mrs. Neiderhuber was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Palestine Woman Unhurt

An East Palestine woman and three other car operators escaped injury when their four vehicles were involved in a mishap Saturday at 12:20 p.m. on Route 7, three-tenths of a mile south of Youngstown.

Dorothy Hogue, 27, of 185 S. Market St., East Palestine, was driving south, the Canfield patrol said, when John J. Prokay Jr., 22, of Youngstown, tried to pass her by going over the center buttons. In doing so, Prokay's auto to sideswiped cars operated by two other Youngstown motorists, Marcus Hloway, 56, and Joanne Laney, 32.

Prokay was cited for reckless operation.

Woman Is Injured

Margie Sutton, 42, of Amsterdam received lacerations of the right leg, contusions of both legs and possible whiplash injuries when the car in which she was riding was involved in a one-car mishap at 2:46 a.m. Sunday. She was taken to Alliance city hospital where she was treated and released.

The Lisbon barracks of the state highway patrol said the car, driven by Leon H. Coffy, 47, of Carrollton, was traveling on Rt. 30, one and one-half miles east of Minerva, when it failed to negotiate a curve, went off the right side of the road and rolled over. Coffy was cited for reckless operation.

Receives Cut Over Eye

Ethel Armentrout of Youngstown is in fair condition at Salem City Hospital with lacerations of the face and possible chest injuries sustained when the auto in which she was riding hit a tree on Chestnut St. (Rt. 7) in Rogers at 3:40 p.m. Sunday.

The patrol said Berlin Lee Armentrout, 30, of Youngstown was traveling north when he lost control of his vehicle while trying to avoid another auto which pulled out in front of him.

Mishap Near E. Palestine

The only other injury accident investigated over the weekend by the Lisbon barracks occurred at 8:35 p.m. Sunday on Rt. 170, two miles south of East Palestine.

Charles DeJulius, 41, of RD 1, Beaver Falls, Pa., was traveling south when the traffic in front of him slowed. DeJulius was unable to stop, went off the right side of the road and struck a tree. He suffered abrasions of the forehead.

Lillie Bell May, 20, of RD 1, Kensington, escaped injury when she lost control of her auto in a curve on Rt. 518 near Gavers at 5:15 p.m. Saturday and went off the road, hitting an embankment. Wolfgang Schubach, 43, of Cleveland was cited for reckless operation when the vehicle he was driving rolled over in a field near Guilford Lake at 1 p.m. Saturday.

According to the patrol, Schubach was traveling north on Rt. 410 at the intersection of Rt. 172 when he slid through the intersection, lost control and turned over.

Herbert Shimer Jr., 17, of Washingtonville was cited before Juvenile Court Judge Louis J. Tobin after he failed to negotiate a curve on Rt. 344 west of Leetonia at 6 p.m. Saturday, went off the right side of the highway and struck a tree.

James Clarence Shaw, 19, of RD 1, East Liverpool, was arrested for reckless operation when his auto went off the right side of Rt. 424 near East Liverpool and rolled over. Patrolmen say Shaw apparently fell asleep. The accident took place at 1:40 a.m. Sunday.

Moderate damage was done to a vehicle operated by Robert E. McCleary, 31, of Rogers when another vehicle backed into him at an intersection on Rt. 154, one and one-half miles west of the Pennsylvania state line, at 7:05 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Universe Crown Won By Brazil Girl

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Miss Universe, shy 18-year-old Ieda Maria Vargas of Brazil, had her first date for her coronation ball—a thronged formal affair with all the trappings of royalty.

Wearing her jeweled crown and a white floor-length ball gown, the black-haired Miss Universe acknowledged her 1,000 well-wishers Sunday night with a polite "Thank you," the only English she knows.

Her first dance in public—"in my whole life I think"—was with actor Dana Andrews.

The actor, seated at the head table, escorted the 5-foot-6 Miss Universe to the floor where an orchestra waited to play the "First Dance, the Dance of Miss Universe." Ieda's escort, Luis Menezes, 20, didn't show up in time, so Andrews took over.

"I'm a lousy dancer," he said afterward. Andrews speaks no Portuguese and Ieda speaks no English. "You might say it was awkward," said the actor, in Miami for a play.

Ieda won her title Saturday night over 15 finalists chosen from a field of 92 shapely beauties. Aino Korwa of Denmark was first runnerup; Marlene McKown of Ireland, second; La-Laine Bennett of the Philippines, third, and Kim Myung-ja of Korea, fourth.

Rocky, Goldwater Kick Up Political Dust at Confab

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., kicked up a cloud of political dust over the annual Governors' Conference today with a whirlwind race for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

Goldwater, the man who isn't here, was keeping a hot pace with Rockefeller, on hand with his new wife and riding a civil rights horse with a heavy hand on the whip.

GOP National Chairman William E. Miller declined to assess the political results that might have been registered by Rockefeller.

feller, and by the Democratic governors who pinned a "segregationist" label on the Arizona senator.

In Washington, a Goldwater aide said that the conference statements indicated that "the Democrats are beginning to panic because of Senator Goldwater's dramatic rise in popularity."

"Otherwise," this spokesman said, "I doubt that the Democratic governors would be engaged in low-level smear tactics."

Absent from the political firing front were Republican Govs. George Romney of Michigan and William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, both mentioned as possible 1964 GOP presidential contenders. Romney avoided all political discussions on Sunday because of his Mormon religion. Scranton is not attending the conference.

The Rockefeller objective was to draw a sharp line between himself and Goldwater on civil rights. The only issue the New York governor has been able to find to revive his spumpling hopes for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination. By all counts the conservative Goldwater has plunged into the lead since Rockefeller divorced his wife of 31 years and married Mrs. Margaretta (Happy) Murphy, divorced mother of four children.

The blonde, attractive new Mrs. Rockefeller was a sensation at a "beachcomber" party Sunday evening.

Rockefeller, hoping the civil rights battle would boost his presidential stock, worked hard for an opportunity to get a conference vote on the issue. He seemed to have the support of most of the Republican governors in this cause.

GOP Gov. Paul Fannin of Arizona, who described Goldwater in glowing terms at a news conference, remained unsure whether he would support the New York governor's move to put the state executives on record as favoring a strong civil rights stand.

After a series of sharp news conference questions about his candidate's position, Fannin finally said that Goldwater was neither a segregationist nor an integrationist but simply "An American."

Democratic Govs. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown of California and Carl E. Sanders of Georgia described Goldwater as a segregationist.

U.S., Britain Approve Pact With India

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced today agreement with Britain and India to strengthen India's defenses against possible air attacks from Communist China.

Announcing the air defense agreement between the three countries, the State Department said that in the event of renewed Chinese Communist aggression against India "the United States has agreed to consult with the government of India regarding possible measures to strengthen India's air defenses in the light of the situation existing at the time."

The State Department said the agreement "does not, however, involve any commitment on the part of the U.S. government to come to India's assistance in the event of a renewed Chinese Communist attack."

Under terms of the agreement, the U.S. Air Force and the Royal Air Force will hold periodic, joint training exercises in India with the Indian air force.

The United States also will provide India with radar and communications equipment.

The first radar will be sent in the form of mobile units until fixed radar units can be installed.

Braves Deal Dodgers Double Setback

Bucs Nip Cubs 6-5 In 14 Innings; Phils Hand Mets 16th Loss In Row

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

This has been a great year for pitchers.

But you couldn't prove it by their work Sunday in the National League.

There were 183 hits sprayed around and out of NL parks in eight games, including 22 home runs.

The Pittsburgh Pirates rapped out 22 hits in an extra-inning victory, Philadelphia's streaking Phillies collected 29 in a double-header sweep over the New York Mets, the Milwaukee Braves got 26 in tripping Los Angeles' front-running Dodgers twice, and both St. Louis and San Francisco ran up big totals.

Strangely enough, the big guy for the day was Ron Fairly, who belted a grand slam, another homer, a double and three singles—for the losing Dodgers.

Milwaukee did in the Dodgers by scores of 7-2 and 13-7, and second-place St. Louis moved up to within six games of the league leaders by trouncing Houston 9-4.

The Phils extended their winning streak to seven and the Mets' losing string on the road to 16, 8-0 and 7-2. Pittsburgh nipped Chicago 6-5 in 14 innings on Jerry Lynch's record-tying single. And San Francisco erupted for a 10-5 victory over Cincinnati.

Hank Aaron and Denis Menke homered for Milwaukee in the opener and rookie Bob Sadowski posted his first pitching victory after four losses. The second game was decided by the Braves seven-run fourth inning and Tony Cloninger's tight relief pitching.

Torre had a homer and two singles in that one, driving in four runs.

Dick Groat increased his league-leading average to .338 with a double and triple in the Cardinals' romp over the Colts, who now have lost six in a row, 10 of their last 12 and 13 of their last 16. Bob Gibson won his fourth straight for an 11-4 record.

The Phils, who have taken 13 of their last 16, got a four-hit shutout performance from Chris Short in the opening game against the Mets, then Dennis Bennett and Johnny Klippstein combined for a strong job in the second game. Meanwhile, Philadelphia batters unloaded, with five hits each by Johnny Callison and Ruben Amaro leading the barrage.

Lynch homered with two on in the last of the ninth inning for the Pirates, tying the Cubs at 5-5, for the 14th pinch homer of his career matching the big league record set by George Crowe. Then in the 14th, Donn Clendenon and Bob Bailey singled, setting the stage for Virdon's deciding hit off loser Jack Warner. Don Cardwell, loser of the first game, won the second with three innings of one-hit relief.

Paul Toth pitched a seven-hitter for the Cubs in the opener and was backed by Lou Brock's two-run homer.

The defending champion Giants, fighting a prolonged slump, cut loose against the Reds. Orlando Clepeda paced the offense with a homer and two doubles for San Francisco, which had won only three of its previous 13 games.

Bob Bolin won in relief, while Cincinnati's prize lefty, Jim O'Toole was tagged for his sixth straight defeat and now is 13-9.

Indians Drop Doubleheader to Yanks, Extend Losing Streak To 9 Straight

NEW YORK (AP) — It's no game of a double header Sunday shame to lose to the New York Yankees, but the Cleveland Indians muffed several good chances to eat them and snap a losing streak that now stands at nine games.

The Tribe dropped the first

5-2, then lost the nightcap, 5-4, in the 11th inning when Boy Richardson singled home Clete Boyer from second base. The low was off reliever Early Wynn and cost him his 58th lifetime defeat at the hands of the Yankees.

Trailing 4-1, the Indians cut the deficit to 4-3 in the eighth inning of the second game. Jim Bouton was knocked out of the box when Tito Francona walked and Larry Brown and Willie Kirkland singled. Bill Stafford became the Yankee pitcher, and Fred Whitfield knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly.

Al Luplow singled in the ninth and Woodie Held followed with a triple, tying the game. Steve Hamilton replaced Stafford and got Francona to fly out and Brown to ground out. Francona's fly ball was fairly shallow and Held didn't attempt to score. Hector Lopez' throw to the plate was wide.

Alvis tripped in the 10th but was left stranded when Hamilton fanned Whitfield and got Willie Tasy on a grounder.

Reliever Bo Allen's wildness in the seventh helped the Yankee cause in the nightcap. New York had a 3-1 lead, Lopez having hit a two-run homer off starter Barry Latman.

Allen threw eight pitches; six of them went into the dirt. Allen walked Boyer and wild-pitched him to second. Bouton sacrificed and then Allen threw another wild pitch, Boyer scoring.

In the opener, rookie Al Downing balanced out his wildness — he walked nine — by striking out 10, and was tough in the clutch until the ninth. He gave up only four hits — two of them singles by Gene Green.

The Indians had two men on base in each of seven innings. Sporting a 5-0 lead, Downing walked the first two men in the ninth. Hal Reniff relieved him and struck out Francona. Then Willie Kirkland singled and Alvis doubled. But with men on second and third and one out, Joe Adcock popped out and Whitfield grounded out.

The Yankees touched starter Jack Kralick for five hits and three runs in the first inning of the first game. Contributing to the Yankee rally was Adcock's misplay of a bunt and bobble of a single to center by Kirkland.

The Indians are idle today.

Liston Remains Solid Favorite To Keep Title In Bout Tonight

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Awesome Sonny Liston remained a most formidable favorite to retain the world heavyweight in tonight's fight with Floyd Patterson, the man he utterly wrecked in one devastating round in Chicago last Sept. 25.

Scheduled for 15 rounds, although you can get even money in the Las Vegas gambling parlors that it won't go four, this return encounter goes on at 9:30 p.m., (EST).

A capacity crowd of almost 8,000 will watch in person in the Las Vegas Convention Center, and an undetermined number will view it in more than 140 theater and other outlets around the nation via closed circuit television.

The rematch, one that many thought never would take place, one that many felt shouldn't take place, figures to draw around $250,000 in the live gate and upward of $700,000 from television and movie returns.

This would be far less than the $4 million-plus paid out for the original match, a statistic easily explained by the tick of a stopwatch. The first one lasted two minutes six seconds, third quickest in heavyweight title boxing history.

Liston predicted he would weigh 213-214 pounds, a pound or so under his Chicago weight. Patterson said he hoped to come in at 195, six more than before.

The betting odds in recent days have been 4-1 on 30-year-old Sonny, who now calls Denver his home, and 30-1 the 28-year-old ex-champion won't be around after 15 rounds.

Detroit Dumps Angels 8-2 Behind Lary

Subs Provide Punch For Yanks With Key Personnel Sidelined

Associated Press Sports Writer

It might be better for the fading position in the American League if the pace-setting New York Yankees had Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Tom Tresh back in the line-up.

With the three regular members of their formidable outfield out with ailments, all the crippled Yankees did over the weekend was take three straight from Cleveland's vanishing Indians and stretch their lead to seven games, largest bulge of the season.

The reserves, eager as a bunch of high school scrubs trying to earn a letter, have been getting the big hits as the Yankees just roll on.

"I'm afraid to get back in the line-up," jested the mighty Mantle, sidelined with a broken bone in his left foot since June 5. "We are liable to blow 10 straight if I get back."

Mickey is almost ready. Harry Bright, one of the recent brighter lights from the deep Yankee bench, belted important two-run homers Saturday and Sunday and Hec Lopez whacked another.

The Yanks took the Saturday game 5-4 and swept the Sunday doubleheader, 5-2 and 5-4, winning the nightcap in the 11th inning on Bobby Richardson's run-scoring single off reliever Early Wynn.

Bob Tillman's 10th-inning homer off reliever Hoyt Wilhelm gave the Red Sox their squeaker over the White Sox at Chicago. Dick Stuart's two-run single in the ninth had tied it up for Boston. Dick Radatz, the big Boston flame-thrower who came into the game in the ninth, boosted his record to 12-1.

Minnesota's Don Mincher, another recent escapee of the bench, clouted two homers—his fourth in two days—in the Twins' home victory over Washington. John Goryl followed up Mincher's last homer in the eighth with one of his own for the winning run.

The home run also produced the winner at Kansas City as Wayne Causey's sixth-inning blow brought the A's their triumph over the Baltimore Orioles. Causey's homer was better than a birthday cake for Mo' Drabowsky who celebrated his 28th birthday with a five-hit win.

Lary stopped the Angels on a four-hitter for his first major league victory in more than a year. The Tigers responded to the noble effort by their old meal-ticket by pounding three Angel fingers for 13 hits.

Uncle Sam's Women Lose 75-28

U.S. Track Stars Scratch Out 5-Point Win Over Russia

MOSCOW (AP)—When does a winner feel like a loser? When he beats the Russians by only five points.

The American track and field team scratched out a victory over the Soviet Union in their annual dual meet here Saturday and Sunday by that slim margin, lowest American victory total ever.

But it would be difficult to identify the winners today. The Russians were flashing their thumbs up "hunky dory" signal all over town.

The Americans were gloomy. There were enough sour grapes around to start a vinegar factory.

Targets for American carping included the food in Moscow hotels, some of the athletes themselves and the behavior of some members of the women's team, who reportedly sat around hotel lobbies complaining about life in Moscow, instead of training.

These were the cold facts: The Americans won 12 of the events, the Russians 10. That was the lowest victory margin in the history of the five meets in a series that began in 1958.

The Americans got only the points they expected, and not all of those. None of their hoped-for points materialized.

The Soviets won the 110 high hurdles for the first time, and took seconds in the 100 and 400 meters for the first time. Russian Valery Brumel broke his own world high jump record with a leap of 7 feet 5 inches.

The Americans lost the 400 meter relay when they were disqualified for blatantly illegal baton passing.

Almost unbelievable disaster struck the women's team in the Soviet meet.

The girls were shipped by the Russians 75-28, lost all 10 events and only took two seconds.

30 points if they had only walked around the track.

But in probably the worst international showing ever made by an American team, they didn't even achieve that. Two girls were thrown out of races for false starts and one girl fell in the hurdles and didn't finish.

That made the combined score—the one the Russians watch closely—189-147 for the Russians.

American 1-2 sweeps in the 200, 400 hurdles, 1500 and discus Sunday, plus a smashing victory in the 1600 meter relay stemmed the Soviet tide.

Dyrol Burleson whipped Tom O'Hara in the stretch run of the 1500, in 3:41—the equivalent of a 3:58 mile.

Henry Carr, who has a pending world record of 20.3, took the 200 in 20.9, with Paul Drayton second.

Veteran Willie Atterberry repeated in the hurdles in 50.4, with Rex Cawley, who led most of the way, second.

The "old pros," Jay Silvester, and Rink Babka, finished 1-2 in the discus, although they only got off the plane to join the team Friday night, five days after most of the others had arrived.

Two other late arrivals, Harold Connolly and Parry O'Brien, turned out to be life-savers, too. Connolly won the hammer for the third time in the five meets, and O'Brien was second in the shot to teammate Dave Davis, both on Saturday.

Jim Beatty, the Los Angeles star who was favored to win the 5,000, did not start in the race because of an injured leg muscle. The result was a Soviet 1-2 sweep.

Steve Pembroke of Littleton, Colo., will captain West Point's 1964 golf team.

60 Players Report For Browns Drills

HIRAM, Ohio (AP)—With their opening exhibition at Detroit less than three weeks away, 37 veterans and 23 rookies report today to the Cleveland Browns training camp.

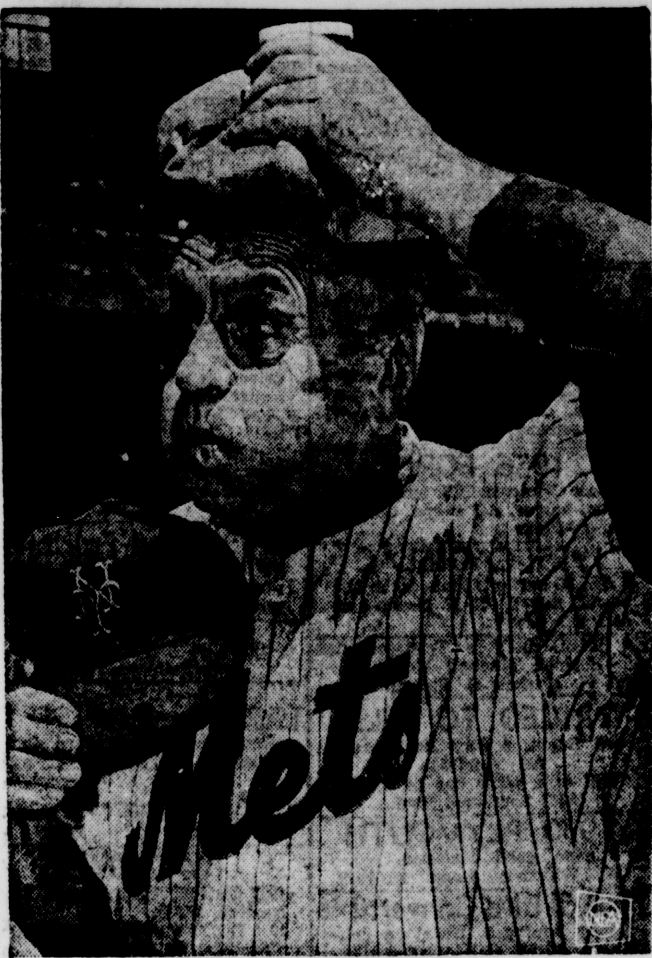

For the first time since the Browns were founded in 1946, Paul E. Brown won't be around. The destiny of the 1963 National Football League club depends on Blanton Collier, named last winter to succeed Brown.

"I think there will be more freedom of expression," fullback Jim Brown said Sunday night. "I'm looking forward to playing under Blanton Collier."

Some other veterans were known to feel the same way.

Collier was to outline his training plans this morning, and the 40-yard sprint tests and picture-taking are on the afternoon's agenda. Regular morning and afternoon workouts begin Tuesday.

Place-kicker Lou Groza, with the club since it first was organized is the greybeard of this year's contingent. Other oldtimers on hand are Ray Renfro, flanking halfback in his 12th season. Defensive tackle Bob Gain is starting his 11th year with Cleveland.

HOT CASE — Casey Stengel cools his fevered brow with an ice pack. Between a heat wave and the performance of his New York Mets, the manager had reason to try to cool off.

Nicklaus Says He's 'Still Hungry' Following 2-Stroke PGA Victory

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Big Jack Nicklaus at the tidy old age of 23 and after a spectacular amateur career, has added the Professional Golfers Association title to his 1962 U.S. Open championship and his 1963 Masters crown. It has left him happy but hungry for more.

"Sure I'm still hungry," the blocky, cherub-faced Columbus, Ohio, heavyweight said after a sizzling 3-under-par 68, capped by a title-winning 30-foot birdie putt on the 69th hole, had brought him from behind to the PGA crown by two strokes over Dave Ragan and three over Bruce Crampton and Dow Finsterwald.

"I'm in this game as a competitor and I want to win every time I play."

"When I get to the stage where I'm not hungry any more, then I don't see much point in playing. I don't think that time will come very soon."

"I've still got plenty to learn about golf," Nicklaus emphasized. In his rounds of 69-73-69-68—279 on the 7,046-yard, par 36-35-71 Dallas Athletic Club course Nicklaus used 134 putts, which averages out to slightly more than 33 a round, and about 14 more than Jack's normal putting pace. Although sub-par golf turned up with more frequency in the third and fourth rounds, only Nicklaus at 279, Ragan at 281 after a closing 69, and Crampton and Dow Finsterwald, at 282 after shooting 74 and 72 respectively, were under par.

The other two members of the Big Three—Gary Player and Arnold Palmer—had their troubles, although Player came back in the

Chuck McKinley Wins Clay Court Crown, Beats Ralston

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
RIVER FOREST, Ill. (AP)—Chuck McKinley, the new national clay court tennis champion, and runner-up Dennis Ralston are the only sure bets for the U.S. Davis Cup team, non-playing captain Bob Kelleher said today.

Kelleher and the traveling tennis brigade headed for the Merion Cricket Club near Philadelphia for the Pennsylvania Grass Court championships this week.

It is there, Kelleher said, that he may select a four-man team first must get past Canada at to meet, in all probability, Mexico in the American Zone semifinals at Los Angeles starting Aug. 16.

"You would have to say McKinley and Ralston are the only sure bets to make it," Kelleher told The Associated Press. "Picking the other two is going to be one of the biggest problems I've had."

"There are 6 or 8 fellows in the scramble — like Bill Bond (who will be defendin his Pennsylvania grass court crown), Allen Fox, Don Dell, Marty Riessen and others."

"Three of our top ranked players no longer are around, Frank Froehling has had to have surgery. Jack Douglas and Hamilton Richardson have retired."

"I am selecting only four for the U.S. team. In Davis Cup competition, you win on quality not quantity. "It looks as if we will be playing Mexico, although that team Vancouver Aug. 4-6. The Mexicans, who boast the Wimbledon doubles champions — Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox — should give us a real first class battle."

"At Los Angeles we'll be playing on concrete courts. That's one reason I want to wait and see how our players do on grass at Merion. Shots come off grass and concrete much the same. I plan to pick the team at Merion, but I have until Aug. 5 to do it."

Wimbledon champion McKinley needed only a little more than an hour to crush NCAA titlist Ralston 6-2, 6-2, 6-4 Sunday in winning his second National Clay Court crown at the River Forest Tennis Club.

Clark Graebner, of Shaker Heights Ohio and Riessen, Evanston, Ill., upset top-seeded Ralston and McKinley 6-4, 0-6, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 for the doubles championship. Nancy Ritchey, 20-year-old daughter of a Dallas tennis professional, took only 33 minutes to dispose of 18-year-old Victoria Palmer of Phoenix, Ariz., 6-1, 6-1 for the women's title.

It was the fourth time the two had met in a tournament final this season, with Miss Ritchey sweeping them all. A week ago she won the Western Open crown in Milwaukee.

at the Country Store

The Columbiana County Historical Society has had some plates made up in commemoration of the civil war centennial. They sell for a dollar and a half. There are not too many of them being made and they should become a real collectors item.

Naturally they will be on sale here at the Country Store. I haven't had a look at them yet but Roy Guy tells me they are very nice. We are to get them in later today.

FOR SAFE TURNING

NEW YORK (AP) — Proper signaling for turns marks the courteous driver. Since almost every car on the road has mechanical turn signals, the motorist need only make sure they are in adequate working condition. Changes in the speed of your directional flasher are an indication that your bulb has probably burned out.

NEA LEADER — Robert Hall Wyatt, 60, of Indianapolis, has taken office as president of the National Education Association the teachers' organization convention in Detroit.

Tot Lashed To Swamped Boat Saved

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—"Let's have another picnic." So said Christy Martine, 3, who was rescued Sunday after she had been lashed for nine hours to the bow of a swamped boat in Lake Pontchartrain.
"But this time not in the water," she said as she rested in a hospital here.
She and a Catholic priest, the Rev. Anatole Baillargeon, O.M.I., 40, a professor at the Oblate Seminary at Natick, Mass., were pulled, nearly unconscious from the water Sunday.
Another priest, the Rev. John Sauvageau, O.M.I., 45, of New Orleans, swam seven miles to shore, without a life preserver. He summoned the Coast Guard.
Father Sauvageau made the swim towing Lana Fagot, 14, buoyed up by a plastic ice box and a life preserver fashioned from a boat seat cushion.
Mrs. Jean Martine, 26, the mother of Christy, also with a life preserver, swam some five miles toward shore before she was picked up.
Father Baillargeon, who could not swim, stayed behind to take care of the child until help came.
The 18-foot motorboat, which was swamped in a sudden squall, settled in about 12 feet of water, with the bow of the boat above the surface.

The boat was about seven miles from the north shore of the 24-mile wide lake.

Father Baillargeon tied the little girl to the boat and to himself. After the other priest gave the alert, a Coast Guard helicopter picked them up. Another boat picked up Mrs. Martine.
The boating party had crossed the lake from New Orleans to visit some church people who were picnicking on the north shore.

Mrs. Martine is secretary to Father Baillargeon. The Fagot girl is her baby sitter. They were returning from the picnic when the mishap occurred.

SHORTEST DISTANCE

DAWSON SPRINGS, KY (AP)—How long is a mile? Only 1.625 feet at Dawson Springs. It measures that distance on the Illinois Central Railroad tracks, starting at mile post J 165.

The mile was shortened a few years ago when the railroad straightened and relocated some of the track.

Since the mileposts are numbered consecutively between here and Paducah, they had to be relocated to conform to the new route, or have the squeeze put on. The railroad decided to squeeze.

LOSES 131 POUNDS — Mrs. Elaine Johnson, 39-year-old ex-wife, smiles as she leaves Wadsworth Veterans Administration Hospital in Los Angeles weighing only 184 pounds. She entered the hospital six months ago weighing 315 pounds. While there she went on a 117-day fast, longest known time anyone has gone without food, subsisting entirely on water and vitamins. "I feel great," she said.
